JAIL COMMITTEE REVIEWS PLANS-Members of the Hancock County Jail Committee reviewed the plans of the Hancock County Jail which are to be presented to the Board of Supervisors on Nov. 4, according to Fred Wagner, architect. Those in photo are, from left, Wagner, John Longo, Waveland mayor; and Pam Metzler, Hancock County deputy circuit clerk. Some 35 members were appointed to the committee by the board of supervisors and Bay St. Louis and Waveland city administrations. The group helped promote the passage of a bond issue for the new facility. Wagner told the group he hopes the supervisors will accept the plans at the Nov. 4 meeting and then advertise for bids for the Dec. 2 meeting. The new facility is to be located behind the Hancock County Youth Court and The Sea Coach Echo buildings. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Police attribute low burglary rate to arrests, neighborhood watch

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK The Bay St. Louis Police Department reports a "very drastic" reduction in the number of burglaries in the past few weeks.

The decreased number of burgalries can be attributed to more alert policemen, quicker response by policemen, neighborhood watch programs and recent apprehensions of burglary suspects, Bay Police Chief Ray Murphy said.

Murphy also said thorough investigations by Dectective David Murtgah was also a contributing factor to the lower rate of burglaries.

According to Murtagh during his first couple of months with the police department the number of burglaries was "pretty high". "We were averaging 10-15 burglaries a month but now there are almost none," he said.

"Of course they might hit us with 15 tonight but the numbers have been down for several weeks," Murtagh added.

More alert policemen and quicker response time are just two of the improvements noted at the police department through programs initiated by Murphy.

Currently the city is divided into two sectors and patrolmen on duty are actually responsible for their

"This way they can concentrate on a specific area and are beginning to feel a sense of obligation to businesses and residents in that sector," Murphy said.

The officers have been doing an outstanding job and are checking buildings several times a night, he

"Checking a building does not just mean driving by, but actually getting out of the vehicle checking the front door and going down the alley to check the back door," Murphy ad-

"If there is a burglary in a sector, the least a patrolman can do is discover it before the owner comes in the next morning," he said.

Murphy also said the patrolmen are now getting out of the patrol car to meet residents in the sector they are assigned.

"I want them to learn to recognize the residents and vehicles that belong in an area so those that do not are easily noted," he added. "This is the difference between riding around and patroling," Murphy said.

Murphy also said he needs only one additional person to meet his goal of 25 members of the auxiliary police. Starting in the next few weeks there will be an increased number of officers on the streets from Thursday to Sunday, Murphy said. As auxiliary policemen complete their training they will begin working a required 30 hours a week and will be assisting particularly on the

State wastewater laws kill county realty sales

BY DENA BISNETTE

Realtors in Hancock County remain unable to obtain sanitation permits for property in most subdivisions and rural areas.

A group of realtors headed by Delmer Wilcox of Waveland met Wednesday with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Senator Gene Taylor, Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr. and representatives of Hancock County Health Department, State Health Department, Bureau of Pollution Control, Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District, Gulf Regional Planning Commission and the Hancock County Planning Commission Wednesday afternoon to seek a solution to the problem.

According to Wilcox, realtors or homeowners cannot finance property through federal lending institutions unless they have sanitation permits.

He had, on behalf of the realtors, complained to the supervisors earlier that such permits could no longer be obtained under the law for septic tanks systems and had asked for assistance in obtaining permits for individual onsite wastewater disposal systems.

State law, however, prohibits the use of individual systems except in isolated rural areas, according to Kathy Beam, district sanitarian with the State Department of Health's Gulfport office.

"Our only purpose in having these regulations and any regulations is to protect the property owner and the public, especially with regard to water quality," said Dr. Alton Cobb, director of the State Health Depart-

"The only solution we can offer is to work with you and Senator Taylor in introducing legislation that will change the law," Beam said.

She explained that the law specifically prohibits the use of alternative systems of individual onsite wastewater disposal in subdivisions and other densely populated

Septic tanks can be used only in subdivisions that were 50 percent or more developed in 1978 when the law took effect, provided that lot size and elevation is adequate for proper functioning of the tank and its disposal field.

She said long term solutions are the best way to take care of the problem and added that the wastewater district is presently working on a project that will add some of the subdivision in question to a central sewerage system.

Ethel Schott, representing the wastewater district, explained that the long term project currently underway in the district is scheduled to eventually extend to some subdivisions, including parts of Shoreline Park and BaySide Park, two areas repeatedly cited as having problems with raw sewage and inadequate septic tanks.

She said whether the project is completed to the extent that the more densely populated county areas are included depends on whether a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency funding program is continued and whether or not the supervisors make formal requests for those areas to be included.

The phases of the project already funded provide for improvement of the Bay St. Louis sewage lagoon and the Waveland treatment plant. Efforts to obtain funding for linking the two systems are also underway. Franckiewicz said he feels the two cities are the smallest part of the problem, since they have central sewerage systems.

Taylor suggested that some effort be made to change the current law to provide for enforcement against the dumping of raw sewage into waterways and ditches in addition to making provisions for a temporary or long term solution to the need for wastewater disposal in subdivisions. Beam said there is presently no way to enforce regulations against dumping raw sewage because her department cannot offer those guilty of the violations any alternative, particularly since septic tanks are harder to approve.

Bay council reviews proposed changes in utility ordinances

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Changes in the city's utility ordinances were proposed to members of the Bay St. Louis City Council Tuesday by Mayor Victor Fran-

The changes were given to the council for review and consideration. Following a study by council members, a public hearing will be scheduled on the changes. Franckiewicz also requested the council make any suggestions for additional changes.

City Clerk Edward Favre also recommended that the council establish a preferred customer status. "What we are looking at is actually having two sets of tapping fees,"

The preferred customer status would allow a lower meter deposit for persons who could demonstrate a good credit record, said Franckiewicz. "This will prevent good-paying customers from having to sub-sidize non-paying customers," Favre said. New customers will also be required to fill out a form requesting that the city extend credit.

Councilman James Thriffiley requested that the "credit application" be very meticulous and complete.

The city has too many outstanding utility bills already, he said.

Proposed changes in utility ordinances include:

-Working with people with fixed incomes to have the due date of utility bills coincide with the time they received checks.

-Levelized billing for preferred customers.

--Improved payment preferred customers.

-Cut-off and reconnection fees be charged accordance for work performed during hours and work performed after regular hours.

-Requiring a minimum 24-hour notice to be given for any requested

-Revise gas, water and sewer tap fees to more closely coincide with actual expenses involved.

-Eliminating possibility of another member of household having service re-instated with same members of household remaining in household.

-Requiring that neighbors do not furnish any service to customers whose service has been discontinued.

—Establish the authority to block off sewer lines to force payment when no other metered service is involved.

The council also discussed the text of the proposed drainage ordinance reviewed at a recent public hearing.

Young burglars use possum scam to approach victims

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Preying on local elderly women, a couple of young black males have been using various methods to distract residents and burglarize their homes.

A method that has been used at least twice is the 'possum scam,' said Bay Police Detective David Murtagh.

Murtagh said the burglars will approach the homeowner telling them a possum is under the house and offering to get it out.

While the resident is distracted, another person will break in the back door and usually just steal the person's purse, he added.

Murtagh said in the reported cases, burglars had only taken

Pass Christian schools get $50,000 for writing program

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Pass Christian Municipal Separate School District has been provided with a $50,000 grant for the teaching of writing in grades 7-12.

The grant, awarded to the school from Murphy Oil Company Foundation, will pay for the services of members of the National Humanities Faculty.

NFH is a non-profit organization designed to promote improvement of education in elementary and secondary schools.

NHF members will serves as coordinators and resource people for the teachers participating in the twoyear program, according to NHF

President Ben Ladner. Ladner recently visited the school with Joan Pettigrew, a writing specialist on the faculty at Georgia Technical Institute. Pettigrew will coordinate the program and spent two days with high school, junior high and elementary school teachers last week to kick off the program. Pettigrew said the two-day session was used to help identify some of the problems teachers encounter while working on writing skills.

"Writing is an enormously com-

"Writing has become more important for people entering specialized schools as well. The law school admissions test, for example, is essentially a writing test," Pettigrew add-

"At the same time that we are becoming aware that we are not teaching writing very well, we are making increased demands on our students when they go out into the world," she told a group of high school teachers.

She said much research has been done on writing, but it concentrates on specific areas rather than the teaching of writing as a whole.

One of the main problems with teaching students to write, according to Pettigrew, is lack of a specific scope and sequence for instruction. The Pass Christian program is expected to alleviate the problem.

The scope of the program will identify which skills need to be taught, while the sequence will decide in what order they will be presented and when each level of complexity should be introduced.

The program will be tailored to the needs of Pass Christian students and will probably not be used in other schools, she added.

Teachers assisting Pettigrew in assessing the needs of students presented a number of problems involved in writing, including time for

For example, several teachers agreed that writing is more timeconsuming to grade than any other type of assignment.

In addition, assigning writing for practice purposes without grading is difficult because students want to see the results of their work in the form of grades or credit.

NHF faculty members, who are usually professors at major universities with specialties in the humanities, will visit Pass Christian every four to six weeks to meet with

Murphy said in addition to reserve training school, his auxiliary officers will be road certified and must pass a written examiniation.

The increased number and strength of neighborhood watches has also been a real deterrent to burglars, he said.

"What most people don't realize is that their neighbors are their best friends in this situation," Murtagh said.

Cooperation by the citizens is a great asset to the police department, Murphy said.

"If a person sees a moving truck in the neighborhood when no one is moving in or out, they should call the police." he said.

Murphy also said he would like to see people keep their house better lighted at night.

"A 100 watt bulb only burns about seven cents a night and can really light up the area," he said. Although most of the burglaries are done during the day when most homes are unoccupied, lights discourage prowlers and burglars during the night, Murphy added. Speaking of improvements, Mur-

City council approves tax consolidation agreement

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Consolidation of city and county tax departments moved another. step closer Tuesday as the Bay St. Louis City Council voted in favor of the agreement.

Approving the "highly recommended" agreement presented by City Clerk Edward Favre, the council unanimously voted for consolidation of the city's tax department with Hancock County's tax collector/assessor's office.

The agreement must also be approved by the county board of supervisors and state attorney general's office before being put into effect.

Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr. reported to the board that the $6,000 computer cost previously questioned is required to write the computer program.

"The reason that the computer cost is so high is because the state requires totally different handling of city taxes from county taxes," he said.

Franckiewicz also told the council that although the city would have to pay the computer program cost, the city will still save money through the consolidation.

The agreement calls for the county tax collector to collect all city and school district ad valorem taxes on real, personal and public utilities, including motor vehicles.

The county's commission for the services will be two percent of the gross collections. This percentage would be negotiable if the collections exceeded $2,000,000.

Currently the two percent will represent about $30,000 because the county already collects taxes on automobile ad valorem, Favre said. In the agreement, the city also has the right to audit the tax collector at any time. With an initial term of two years, the contract will be automatically renewed unless either the city or

"The city will retain some tax function, they will continue to be responsible for receiving and receipting tax redemption payments, notifying owners of the time and expiration or redemption and issuing tax. deeds," Favre said.

The city will also continue to collect priviledge licenses and building permits, he added.

What we are hoping to do is combine several functions into one job," Favre said.

Duties of this joo would include collecting privlege licenses, acting as an intermediary between the county and city hall and handling redemptions.

In other business, Favre presented to the board bills from three city residents requesting payment for repairs to their vehicles caused by hitting potholes in the ci-

The estimates ranged from $40 to

Favre asked council members if they wanted the claims investigated or did they plan to stand by their policy of not paying for damage caused by hitting a pothole.

Councilman Wilmer Seymour said he believed that the coucil should continue to follow the no-pay policy. Other councilmen concurred.

Attorney John Scafidi recommended to the council that when such a claim was received the actual condition of the pothole should be documented at that time to try and avoid possible problems with litiga-

Also at the meeting the council authorized the mayor and city clerk to borrow up to $175,000 for capital outlay equimpent.

Included in the equipment to be purchased is five new or 10 lowmilage used police vehicles; communications equipment, a National Crime Information Center machine and a copy machine, all for the police department.

The public works department is scheduled to get two trucks, an asphalt machine and communications equipment from the money borrowed.

The funds sought will also be used to purchase a new phone system for city hall, a generator, furnishings and renovations for the fire depart-

Franckiewicz said although funds had been budgeted for capital improvments, the loan was being sought so the entire burden would not be included in a single fiscal

He also said additional milage would not be necessary to retire the loan until 1989, and possibly not at all if the tax base continues to increase.

Congratulations are in order for Mr. Sam Favre Jr. upon his being named Pearl River Junior College's Alumnus of the Year at the school's Homecoming festivities last weekend.

Favre, a graduate of Pearl River, is a Bay St. Louis attorney and is a graduate of Kiln High

The presentation to Favre was made by another Kiln High School graduate and native, Larry Ladner, president of PRC's Alumni Association.

Favre served as Hancock County superintendent of education during the period 1943-47, being the youngest person to hold that position in the county.

We have had several teachers from his administration tell us how they would be teaching a class, and all of a sudden Favre would appear in class and take a seat at a desk.

They said he visited every class in all schools in his district, and observed every teacher in action during his term as superintendent.

He received a bachelor's degree from Mississippi State University in 1943 and took his law degree from University of Mississippi Law School in 1950.

A statement by Ladner when making the presentation to Favre bears repeating: '(Favre) distinguished himself academically in school, professionally in life and epitomized the ideals of a Christian'.

Mr. Sam, as he is known by many of us, has practiced law since 1950 in Bay St. Louis and served his county in many capacities.

Again, congratulations, Mr. Sam.

Friday night will mark the 1985 Homecoming for Bay Senior High.

In football the 13th ranked Tigers will play host to St. Martin's Yellow Jackets.

Bay High has a perfect season to date, but they better not be too confident, as they could be stung by the Yellow Jackets.

Head Coach Clevand Williams has the Tigers rolling this season, and we know Bay High fans are hoping for a Homecoming victory.

Hancock North Central, who lost on the last play of the game last week, will travel to George County Friday night.

The game will be played in Lucedale and Head Coach Irvin Favre's Hawks will have to come up with a lot of surprises and extra effort to bring a victory home.

George County is big and rugged this season. The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws got back on the winning track last Saturday with a victory over Riverdale.

Apparently while talking to the resident he was 'casing' the house and later returned to remove a pocket book.

Folks, to begin with, I would like to take the photograph of a person who could crawl under a house and catch a large opossum in his hands.

There should be some very good claw and teeth marks to get pictures of on this brave person.

Eyes on Mississippi

by Bill Minor

JACKSON-Sen. Thad Cochran's impact upon Mississippi history for the next two or three decades will be felt far beyond how he casts his vote in the United States Senate.

Perhaps his greatest influence will be in the way he has used, and will continue to use, his senatorial patronage in making appointments to the federal judiciary.

Already, in the past three years, Cochran, the first Republican United States Senator from Mississippi this century, has made more appointments to the federal bench than Democratic Sen. John C. Stennis and former Democratic Sen. James O. Eartland made in the previous years.

Within the past week, two more U.S. district judgeship Cochran appointees, Glen Davidson in the Northern district and Henry L. Wingate in the Southern district, were confirmed by the Senate.

One more Cochran appointee. Walter Gex of Bay St. Louis in the Southern district is in the process of confirmation.

This will bring to seven the number of judgeships Cochran has filled by his senatorial patronage. Previously, Cochran had put Grady Jolly, a longtime close friend of his, on the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals, and named District Judges William Barbour and Tom Lee in the Southern district and Neal Biggers in the Northern district.

There is even a strong possibility that another new district judgeship for Southern Mississippi will become available for Cochran since the case load in the district far exceeds the federal criterion to justify the post.

The uniqueness of federal judgeship appointments is they are made for life, and barring some unusual circumstance, such as alleged criminality in office, federal judges serve until age 70, and in some instances, beyond.

All of the Cochran appointees to the federal bench are in their early 40s, and in the case of Wingate, the first black federal judge in Mississippi history, in his late 30s.

But its the power and influence of a federal district judge that carries such great impact upon the lives of citizens within the state in which he

For example, it was a federal district judge, William C. Keady, who in 1972 declared that Parchman Penitentiary was being operated unconstitutionally by the state of Mississippi because it inflicted cruel and unusual punishment upon humans sent there.

His ruling for 13 years now has forced the Mississippi Legislature to make far-reaching penal reforms which the state would have been unlikely to ever make on its own.

and the cost to the citizens of this state now has reached several hundreds of millions of dollars.

Most district judges were the architects of school desegragation plans in Mississippi, right down to details such as which schools must be closed, and how many school buses must be operated.

Supervisors' beat lines were redrawn by federal district judges. and political careers of several prominent Mississippi politicians were ended by courts over which federal judges presided.

In practically every instance, appointments to the federal bench made by Cochran have been a good friend or college croney of Cochran's. That, of course, was not the book on Wingate, who was Cochran's conscious effort to give recognition to the state's black community and mollify criticism that the Reagan administration is insensitive to the needs of blacks...

Each of his appointees has been conservative (even Wingate, according to some knowledge associates, is considerably more conservative' than the average Mississippi black) but not out on the far right of the spectrum.

Cochran's judicial patronage power has created considerable jealousy between him and Rep. Trent Lott, who is a Reagan administration wheelhorse in the Congress. In one notable instance three years ago. Lott tried to make an end run with the White House to prevent Cochran from naming Jolly to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Lott proposed his own candidate, Gulfport attorney Harry Allen, a loyal Republican, contending that Jolly was a Democrat and not conservative enough. But senatorial custom won out in the end, and Cochran got his man appointed by President Reagan. However, as a consolation prize, Cochran let Lott pick his close political associate, attorney Glover Roberts of Gulfport, for a new federal bankruptcy judgeship.

Because of some still unknown personal reasons, Roberts is expected to step out of the $68,000 a year post rather than seek reappointment under a new law which takes effect next year.

Although the federal bankruptcy judgeships are supposed to be no longer within senatorial patronage, under the new statute, but instead non-politically selected by the Court of Appeals of the district in which the state is located, some believe Cochran is going to have indirect influence in the selection process.

These sources cite the selection of former State Sen. Ed Ellington of Jackson to replace longtime bankruptcy judge Barney Eaton in the Jackson area.

Hancock School Board faces state auditor's complaints

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County School Board has agreed to ask the State Audit Department for assistance in hiring a certified public accounting firm to prepare the district's books for audit.

According to Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph, the request was prompted by a Sept, 20 letter from the Office of the State Auditor which alleged that there are 'serious difficulties in the financial record keeping procedures" for the district's 1984 and 1985 books.

The letter said the office would not conduct the required audit for the Hancock County schools unless the problems are corrected.

"Specifically, funds are not in agreement with checking account balances, a determination needs to be made as to the accountability of minimum education program funds. year-to-date totals on ledgers change with no supporting documentation and ammounts do not reconcile from one print-out to another," the letter stated.

"We both have the same goal: timely audits. Your assistance will help us achieve this goal. Without this information, we will be forced to issue an adverse audit opinion which will serve neither your office, nor my office, nor the taxpayers of Hancock County."

The letter was signed by State Auditor Ray Mabus.

The letter erroneously stated that the inadequacies were found through an inspection, but they were actually discovered through telephone conversations, correspondence and meetings with Randolph and with Moore and Powell, the firm that provided the school board's 1983 audit work.

Leslie Chevis, who represented the state auditor's office at the school board's Monday night meeting, told the board that his department could assist the district by making recommendations for corrective action.

Chevis accounted for the error by stating that the letter was a form letter and that the statement about the inspection simply did not apply to Hancock County.

Randolph had responded to the as business manager for Pike Couri-Sept. 20 letter with a request to the auditor's office for more time and a Sept. 26 letter to board members ex-. plaining his action.

In anticipation of the problem. Randolph had requested that the ty and said he can only work on the project occassionally, estimating he still needs three working days to complete it.

He said many of the discrepancies in the books result from faulty com-minated after those four days. That motion and a subsequent proposal to request that the Office of the State Auditor recommend a CPA to complete any remaining preparation and the audit under the supervision of state personnel were approv-board hire Michael Sullivan, a former employee of the State Audit Department, to go over the books.

Sullivan was hired in April and at the time of Randolph's letter estimated that he needed only "four. to five working days" to complete the project.

Sullivan, however, works full time puter software.

"You could take the printouts and burn them and they would do you just as much good as they're doing

Board member Monvel Cuevas moved that Sullivan be given four more working days to complete the job and that his employment be tered by three board members. Board member Lennette Necaise voted against both. She said she felt the board should not spend the $7,000 to $8,000 Chevis estimated would be the cost of a CPA firm, particularly since Sullivan had already been hired to do the work. The board did not take any action on a recommendation by Chevis that a full-time business manager familiar with school law be hired for the district. He said such an individual would be particularly helpful because school districts are implementing a new, state-mandated bookkeeping system for the 1986 fiscal year. The new system accounts for funds which have been committed as well as funds which have been spent. In other business, the board set a meeting on a proposed building program for the district for 8 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 16. The board meets again Nov. 4 at 6:30 p.m.

New reporting procedure outlined for VA pensioners

Persons receiving VA veterans' pension or parents' dependency and indemnity compensation benefit should be aware of a new procedure this year for reporting income and medical expenses, according to Samuel J. Maran, in, Jackson VA Regional Office director.

A new two-page form called the "Eligibility Verification Report" (EVR) is now in use for eligible veterans and dependents to complete and return to the Jackson VA Regional Office.

On Oct. 1 each VA protected pension recipient (old law pensioner) and DIC parent was sent an EVR form to report income and paid medical expenses for 1965.

Persons receiving Improved Pension benefits (new law pension) will receive an EVR sometime between

Dec. 1, 1965, and Sept. 1, 1966. The VA is mailing these new law EVR's on a staggered basis.

Pensioners who previously reported income from Social Security or other sources can expect to receive an EVR between December 1965 and May 1966, while pensioners with no income can expect an EVR between June 1966 and September 1986.

Each EVR will indicate the income reporting period, and the deadline for VA receipt of the completed report.

Failure to report income by the prescribed deadline will result in an interruption of monthly pension checks.

Questions about the new EVR reports or the desire for any other assistance on VA benefits should be directed to Mike Ladner, Hancock County veterans service officer.

Point Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your legal rights.)

Q. I'm really miffed. Perhaps 1 shouldn't be, but I just called the town clerk to find out when the next city council meeting was so I could take my civics class to see local government in action. She said that because a student group last year had littered the hall, the council had voted not to permit student groups to attend meetings. Can they do that?

A. Absolutely not. If they have a grievance against litterers, they can address it. But a foundation of Mississippi and American law is that government business be conducted in public.

With the exception of executive sessions for personnel discussions and other matters, all public commissions and boards are required to open their meetings to any and all who wish to attend.

Q. My sister says she's going to write her own will in longhand and that it will be valid in Mississippi. I told her she's making a mistake. Who's right?

In a sense, you both are. Mississippi law allows a person to write, in their own hand and on plain paper, a valid last will and testament so long as it is properly signed at the end.

This type of will doesn't even require witnesses to sign. In that sense, she's right.

The sense in which you are right is borne out by a long history of judicial decisions which shows courts highly suspicious of handwritten, unwitnessed wills; probably because of the ease or chance of akery

The prudent thing for her to do would be to find a competent attorney to draft the will in accordance with her wishes, inform her of any legal obstacles which might block fulfillment of those wishes, and see that the will is signed and witnessed in the manner prescribed

She should also know that estate taxation laws are changing continually and that tax savings an attorney might alert her to may well exceed the attorney's drafting fee..

Teacher objects to transfer; airs complaint before board

BY DENA BISNETTE

A Hancock North Central Elementary School teacher has protested her transfer from first to sixth grade to the Hancock County School Board.

Sandra Garriga addressed the board Monday night, saying she had been transferred without "due process" and that she feels the transfer may have been punishment for bringing a grievance before the board last year.

She said she came before the board as a parent with the complaint rather than as a teacher.

"I feel when I come before the is a teacher I should he treated as such and I should be treated as a teacher when I go back in the classroom," Garriga said.

She said she was transferred at the beginning of the current school term after having been introduced as a first grade teacher and after two workdays preparing for first

Principal Richard Kinser gave her the alternative of "accepting the transfer or resigning."

She said she accepted the transfer only because she was "financially unable to resign" and because she was not given any prior notice that might have assisted her in finding another job.

"I was devastated by the transfer. I have never taught any grade except first grade, and I have been teaching that for seven years," she Garriga alleged that she had never been given any reason for the transfer and feels there was no need for it, particularly since a teacher who had originally been hired as a sixth grade teacher was transferred from the readiness program to first grade rather than back to sixth grade.

She also stated that she had tried to obtain vacant second and third grade posts rather than the sixth grade post because she felt there would be too much of an adjustment in dealing with the differences between sixth and first grade children.

She said Kinser told her that the difference was "not that big of an adjustment."

In an effort to find out why she was transferred, Garriga met with Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph three times.

"They were very productive sessions but I never got any answer. Once he did suggest that I might have been chosen because I am a good disciplinarian."

She also said she felt due process was not served because the district's teacher handbook states, although elementary school teachers are subject to transfer, adequate notice should be given and the transfer should be recommended by the superintendent for board approval.

The matter was not brought before the board, she said. Board President Billie Faye Lyons said the matter would be turned over to the board's attorney, Joseph Gex, who was late for the meeting and not present for Garriga's presentation.

"There should certainly be no repercussions for a parent coming." before the board," Lyons added.

In other business Monday, the board:

-Went into executive session on a student disciplinary matter;

-Approved several requests for travel for faculty and staff attending workshops and conferences;

-Approved requesting the State Department of Education to waive make-up requirements for student days missed due to Hurricane

Wolves spoil PRC homecoming, 38-7

Copiah-Lincoln shocked the Pearl River College Wildcats with 31 unanswered points in the second half here in Poplarville Saturday night. Not only did the outburst ruin Pearl River's Homecoming, but the 38-7 shellacking of the Wildcats put a big hole in the once rapidly rising confidence of the new 3-5 'Cats.

After posting a 1-3 ledger, the Wildcats fought back with wins over North Division leader Itawamba, East Central and then scared Gulf Coast in a well played game on the Mississippi Gulf Coast for a 3-4 mark.

Last week's embarrassment to the 7-1 Wolves has the Wildcat coaches shaking their heads. Co-Lin scored first last Saturday night, but the Wildcats came storming back to tie the score at 7-7.
Early in the second period the Wildcats appeared to go ahead when Jason Martin passed to Chris Jones for a 10-yard touchdown. But the score was called back when an ineligible receiver was down field.

Atter that, Martin was intercepted at the two-yard line and things began to go downhill.

According to Nelson, the Wolves are probably the best all around team in the state. "Gulf Coast has the best defense, Northwest the best offense, but Co-Lin has the best overall team."

For the Wildcats there is only one goal left here in 1985. That's to win their last two ballgames and record a break-even 5-5 mark.

PRC's opponent this week is Southwest, a team Nelson said has been struggling during the past five weeks. "They have lost five in a row." Nelson said. "They have been having many of the same problems we have faced this season."

Hawks to face George County in 'must win' situation Friday

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Friday's game between the Hancock North Central Hawks and George County is a "must win" situation for both teams to keep district championship hopes alive.

"George County is standing bet-ween us and a district title, there is. no doubt about it, we have to win to be ready for D'Iberville," Hawk Head Coach Irvin Favre said.

If the Hawks win Friday, they will face D'Iberville for the district. championship.

"We have to be very emotionaly prepared and really get after George County," Favre said.

The game will be played in Lucedale and will be George County's Homecoming. Kickoff is at Currently George County has a four win, three loss season record and are coming off a 27-0 defeat by D'Iberville last week.

Although they did lose last week, Favre expects a tough game because George County is a bigger school and the football players average 10-15 pounds more than Hawk players.

Ladies Tennis winners

ladies tennis annual member-guest tournament played Oct. 2 include:

Mary McDonnell, Second; Donna James, third; and Peggy Carter, fourth.

Elizabeth Watts, second; Ann Schatzle, third; and Pat Melton, fourth.

Diamondhead Ladies Tennis Association are Sylvia Robinson, president; Bonnie Salsbury, vice president; and Marty Mizell, secretary-treasurer.

Returning to George County's lineup Friday will be six starting players who were out with injuries last week against D'Iberville.

George County also has the leading offenisve scorer in the district, Johnny Sargent.

Favre said the Hawk defense will be putting pressure on Sargent who has scored 60 points this year in only seven gamés.

"We must have a good solid defense and eliminate the mistakes we made last week," he said.

Last week the Hawks fumbled the ball seven times and lost possesion "You can't win games if you give the ball away," he said.

Offensively, the Hawks need to do what they did in several earlier games and put a lot of points on the board, Favre said.

In addition to a winning football tradition, George County is hard to defeat at home because of natural playing conditions, Favre said.

"When you play a game at George County, you are on what coaches call 'the slab." he said, "The field has no softness and is difficult for players to get their footing."

When a player gets hit and falls the wrong way he can be out with one hit. Favre added.

A lot of key injuries happen up there, he said.

According to Favre another natural condition working against George County's opponents is compactness of the stadium.

"Everything is very closed in and players can be intimidated by the crowd so close at hand," he said.

This match will be the first between the two schools.

"We know a little background on George County but basically don't know anything about playing them," he said.

"We are going up there Friday with 'blood in our eyes,' expecting nothing less than a win," Favre said.

Sun attracts new pro to Diamondhead

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Gulf Coast sunshine has attracted a new pro to Diamondhead's Tennis World.

Diana Preisser, who recently took over as pro at the Diamondhead tennis complex, came down from Lamar, Colo. and said she is impressed with the enthusiasm of the tennis players at Diamondhead.

Preisser works for Washington Tennis Services and is in charge of managing the Diamondhead tennis complex, as well as giving lessons and arranging tournaments.

In addition, she will help to represent Diamondhead at tournaments by playing on its tennis team.

Preisser said she was offered the Diamondhead assignment after the previous pro, Gordon Waite, resigned to return to school.

She said she welcomed the chance to move to the Gulf Coast.

"After growing up in Colorado, I want to be where its warm. I just love the sunshine and the water," she said.

She was given a little extra time to prepare for her job at Diamondhead courtesy of Hurricane Elena. The tennis complex was damaged by the storm and reopened about three weeks after she arrived.

DIANA PREISSER

"I'm glad I missed that," she commented.

Preisser works mostly with adults right now but expects to begin programs for children later in the year, when school activities will not interfere.

"I'm very pleased with the adults.
One of the good things about this type of work is that you deal with all levels."

"The best thing about tennis is that it's a lifetime sport. No matter how young you are when you begin, you can keep on playing."

In addition to working with varied age groups, she works with various levels of talent.

"We have several ranked amateurs here. They tend to take their tennis much more seriously than the people who just play for fun" she explained.

fun," she explained.
Club competitions for the ranked amateurs are played on Tuesdays during tennis season, which is from April to October, although Preisser feels that the season could be extended because the Gulf Coast climate makes it possible to play almost all year.

She said she is working mostly with women because there are few men involved in the Diamondhead tennis program, but there are enough men to have occasional mixed doubles tournaments.

"I like working with either men or women. When I was growing up, I always played against the men, so I'm accustomed to being on the court with both," she explained.

Preisser said she has been teaching tennis for seven years, mostly at camps. She said it has been easy to adjust to working at Diamondhead except for playing on clay courts.

Preisser has already introduced her first new program at Diamondhead, which consists of free lesson for a featured shot each month. She usually selects a little-used shot like the overhead, which enables her students to add variety to their play. She has also been involved in arranging some October tournaments.

"On a clay court, a player has to slow down on timing. The harder courts I'm used to are used to are a lot quicker, but they don't wear you out as much."

Preisser has already introduced her first new program at Diamondhead, which consists of free lesson for a featured shot each month. She usually selects a little-used shot like the overhead, which enables her students to add variety to their play.

She has also been involved in arranging some October tournaments.

Field Day for the Coast Episcopal Elementary School students was staged Saturday morning at Coast Episcopal High School's Pass Christian campus. Each class with the help of Jaida Evans, art instructor, designed and printed a class emblem on a T-shirt. Three- and four-year-olds had happy faces.

The kindergarteners wore a cloud and a rainbow.

The first grade was identified by purple pencils. Grade two wore the word

ROMAN' with a Roman numeral The third grade selected a tennis shoe as their symbol. The fourth grade used a drawing of a ribbon medallion like the Olympic medal. Fifth grade designed a foot with a soccer ball. The sixth grade called themselves the swatch team.

Gaynell Amborse, physical education instructor, had both children and parents well organized. Many parents ran the events that each class competed and other parents followed along with their child's class to cheer. Team events were designed so that every child who participated was a winner. As each event was run, more children proudly wore their winning Space does not allow listing the winners from Team Events, but let it be known that every child was a winner!" emphasizes Amborse.

BINH LY OF PASS CHRISTIAN WITH GRAPHICS HE DESIGNED TO PROMOTE THE BARNACLE BUSTER.

Unique auction item available at Friday's Toast To The Coast

Among items to be auctioned at Coast Episcopal High School PTO's second annual Toast To The Coast Friday evening is a Barnacle Buster—an electronic sound system designed to protect boat bottoms from that marine menace.

under $1,000 to more than $2,000 will be offset by the savings on boat yard fees, painting and scraping, and fuel savings, according to Binh Ly of Pass Christian, the system's distributor.

ESP Industry, Inc. has begun marketing the Barnacle Buster which is a new product developed by Lee Adams and tested for more than

The electronic device utilizes sound waves to prevent barnacles from adhering to steel, aluminum or fiberglass boat hulls.

Installation must begin with hull surfaces free of pre-existing marine growths. Then a series of waterproof transducers are mounted every ten feet on the interior hull bottom.

Low frequency sound waves, sent through the hull by the transducers, set up an impenetrable barrier to barnacle larvae. A plus factor with environmentalists should be that the sound barrier produced by the Barnacle Buster causes no pollutants. Other anti-barnacle methods in use such as marine paints release toxic metals into the water as they deteriorate. The Barnacle Buster which can be powered off the boat's battery, shore power or an 18-by-36-inch solar energy panel for remote moorings, operates cheaply using only 500 milliamps DC. Binh Ly, president of ESP Industry, Inc., has been developing advertising and marketing programs as well as a network of distributors. Presently Adams is experimenting on methods of adopting the device to trans-oceanic ships, barges, and off shore oil drilling rigs.

Binh Ly has donated Barnacle

Buster Model 200, the size for a 30- to 40-foot boat, to the auction at Coast Episcopal Schools PTO's Toast To The Coast because he feels that education is important.

He has lived in Pass Christian for the past six years. He saw the town for the first time when he came to the Gulf Coast to play in a tennis tournament.

He thought the area was beautiful. He and his wife moved here from New Orleans soon after his first

Ly describes his business interests as merger and acquisition. He is involved in investment and real

First he bought the house where The Blue Rose Restaurant is located and then he figured out the use for the building.

He felt that Pass Christian needed a good restaurant.

Upstairs in the house he has the business offices for the ESP Industry, Inc., the promoter of the Barnacle Buster.

Ly is an exhibiting artist in the media of oil painting. He regrets that he does not have more time for painting. He describes himself as very individualistic. He says he always does his best. He feels that excitement comes from doing new Julie Westervelt, general chairman for the second Toast To The Coast says, "The Success of this event is a result of the generosity of so many individuals such as Binh Ly throughout the Gulf Coast communities." "We hope people will come on Oct. 25 and enjoy themselves. There will be over 20 restaurants and caterers serving food, a wonderful exhibit of local artists, music for listening plus dancing with Jerry Fisher, and a fabulous auction," Westervelt con-

"The evening is an entertainment bargain at $25 per person," she said. Tickets are available from Sue Matheson. Call 255-7994.

It's tough to be in control when someone's out of control

'It's gone beyond the normal rebelling. I can't cope with the situation anymore. My child is changing before my eyes." What looks like "bad" adult behavior may seem to an adolescent the only way to respond to fear and confusion. If the behavior patterns below look familiar. your child may be under severe stress and calling for help.

• Sharp, hostile outbursts • Abrupt changes in mood • Secretive behavior, lying • Isolation from the family, marked withdrawal . Deterioration of school performance • Excessive sensitivity to criticism, defensiveness

It may be easier to wait and hope the problem will go away. But while we're waiting, one in four adolescents experiment with alcohol and drugs. While we struggle to regain control, one in 10 become addicted.

Your adolescent could be showing signs of serious emotional stress or depression. You both may need a fresh perspective. Call the NorthShore Psychiatric Hospital. Talk to an experienced counselor who will recommend the right help. It's confidential. It's your chance to regain control of yourself and someone you love.
